DA PICKS ARMY AVIATION INSIGNIA AND COLORS

The Secretary of the Army approved the Army Aviation Branch on 13 April 1983. The Army Chief of Staff approved the Aviation Branch Insignia on 7 August. The branch colors are Ultramarine Blue and Golden Orange. They are currently prescribed for flags and guidons of aviation units. The approved branch insignia is the current Army Aviation style gold wings with a silver prop (above). The approved branch insignia is authorized to be worn now, but will not be available in the PX for 12 months, or in the supply system for approximately 22 months. IIII

Locked in, on target!

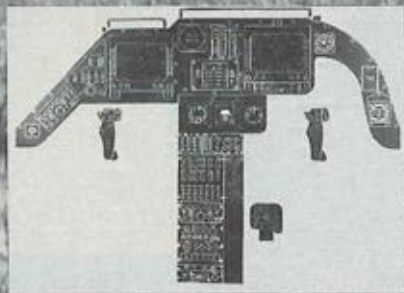

Bell's multi-mission OH58D is heading your way, on schedule, for delivery to the Army during the summer of 1984! This is the high-technology, innovative scout helicopter you've been needing. Its performance will exceed all contemporary helicopters in all altitude conditions. Its simplified, sophisticated control displays system will allow crews to do their demanding job more effectively, more efficiently. The OH58D will also serve as a stable, highly maneuverable command post. From the cockpit, to the mast mounted sight, to the dynamics, this aircraft is a multi-mission system; the result of farsighted engineering that will meet the Army's needs far into the future.

For more information on Bell's progress, write to Ray Swindell, Director, U.S. Government Marketing, Bell Helicopter Textron Inc., Dept 680, Box 482, Ft. Worth, Texas 76101.

Garrett turbine power: More fight for the Army's helicopters.

When it comes to getting a helicopter into action and keeping it there, the Army can depend on Garrett gas turbines to lead the way.

Helicopter APU's: The new AH-64A Apache is one of the most lethal attack helicopters in the sky. And Garrett's Model 36—the lightest, most fuel-efficient APU in its class—is the heart of the AH-64A's Integrated Pneumatic System, a design concept which reduces both the size and weight of the engine start and environmental control systems.

The Model 36 is a prime APU candidate for other new or retrofit helicopter programs.

What's more our Model 36 can also bring self-sufficiency to helicopters which employ DC starting.

Aviation Ground Power Unit (AGPU):

Currently being tested by the Army, the Garrett/Libby International turbine-powered AGPU is a small, versatile helicopter ground support cart which is sling-transportable by the UH-1H. Ready for production, the AGPU, powered by the Model 36 gas turbine, provides pneumatic, AC, DC, and hydraulic power for ground checkout or starting. In addition, it is self-propelled for helicopter towing.

Turbine-Powered Pumps:

Garrett is also developing a sling-transportable fuel pump, powered by the Model 30 gas turbine, with 200 to 600 gpm operation and highly reliable starting capability down to -65°F . Now being evaluated as part of the Army's forward area refueling and bulk transfer program for the Arctic, Garrett's Model 30-powered fuel pump can add range, flexibility, and reliability to any type of mobile fighting system.

IT'S truly an honor for me to assume the duties of the Deputy Director of Force Development and Army Aviation Officer in the Office, Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations and Plans.

After a short time on the job, I can assure you that my responsibilities look to be as challenging as the title is long! I am glad to be on board and look forward to being back in the mainstream of Army Aviation again.

With many initiatives beginning to take shape, such as the branch, the formation of additional aviation brigades, and new equipment fielding, the months ahead should prove to be exciting for the entire aviation community.

The transition went very well for two reasons. First, I only moved over five corridors to my new office. Secondly, and more important, BG Don Parker did such a great job getting so many good actions underway. Those of us now holding the reins will be able to see first hand the results of his fine efforts. Don is an outstanding officer and Army Aviator who left big boots to fill because of his yeoman's efficiency on the job. He will be missed, but I know the 101st is already benefiting from his leadership and aviation expertise.

Of primary interest to all is the transition to an Aviation Branch. In the last issue of Army Aviation, BG Parker outlined the basics of the branch decision approved by the Chief of Staff and the Secretary of the Army. On 6 June 1983, General Meyer approved the U.S. Army Aviation Branch Implementation Plan, including guidance on personnel management, proponentcy, logistics, training, and education issues. MG Bobby J. Maddox, as the Commander, U.S. Army Aviation Center (USAAVNC) and Fort Rucker, is the TRADOC proponent for all Army Aviation matters and, as such, has overall responsibility for establishing the branch and centralizing aviation proponent responsibilities.

Initial reports from USAAVNC indicate that the implementation timetable is being accelerated in several areas. I should have more specifics on that for you next month.

LTG Elton, as the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, has been given primary Army Staff responsibility for executing the branch implementation plan. He has established an implementation team in the Pentagon with COL Ed Lethcoe to oversee accomplishment of the many requirements resulting from a change of this magnitude. We will be working closely with both TRADOC and ODCSPER as we travel this very important path for Army Aviation. I intend to keep you informed as we go.

I look forward to the challenges and getting out to see you as often as I can. Fly safely! More to come!

Lean & Mean.

Turbomach power.
It gets these mean birds airborne.

Self-sufficiency's the name of the game in military helicopters. And Turbomach's Titan auxiliary power unit provides it in spades.

Over 95% of all U.S. military helicopters large enough to require an APU have had a Turbomach Titan on board.

More than 4,000 Titans have provided reliable auxiliary power in over 5½ million hours of helicopter operation.

Titan is rugged. Dependable. Powerful. Everything the U.S. Army demands from its men and equipment, both. And Titan's tough in the battle of economics, too. Initial and operating costs are lean and trim.

Bell gets $17.9 million award for AHIP long-lead items

FY84 procurement of 16 ASH anticipated by July 25 AVRADCOM award

Fort Worth, Texas—The Army Helicopter Improvement Program (AHIP) took another step forward on July 25, when Bell Helicopter Textron received a $17.9 million award for long-lead items and related ground support equipment for 16 aircraft.

The contract, announced by House Majority Leader Jim Wright, was issued by the Army Aviation Research and Development Command, St. Louis, MO.

The Army go-ahead to Bell on the long-lead items is in anticipation of FY84 procurement of 16 of the advanced scout helicopters. Since September 1981, when Bell was declared winner of the AHIP competition, the company has been engaged in research and development of its winning entry, including design, modification and testing of five prototype aircraft. First flight of a modified OH-58A from the Army's inventory is slated in September.

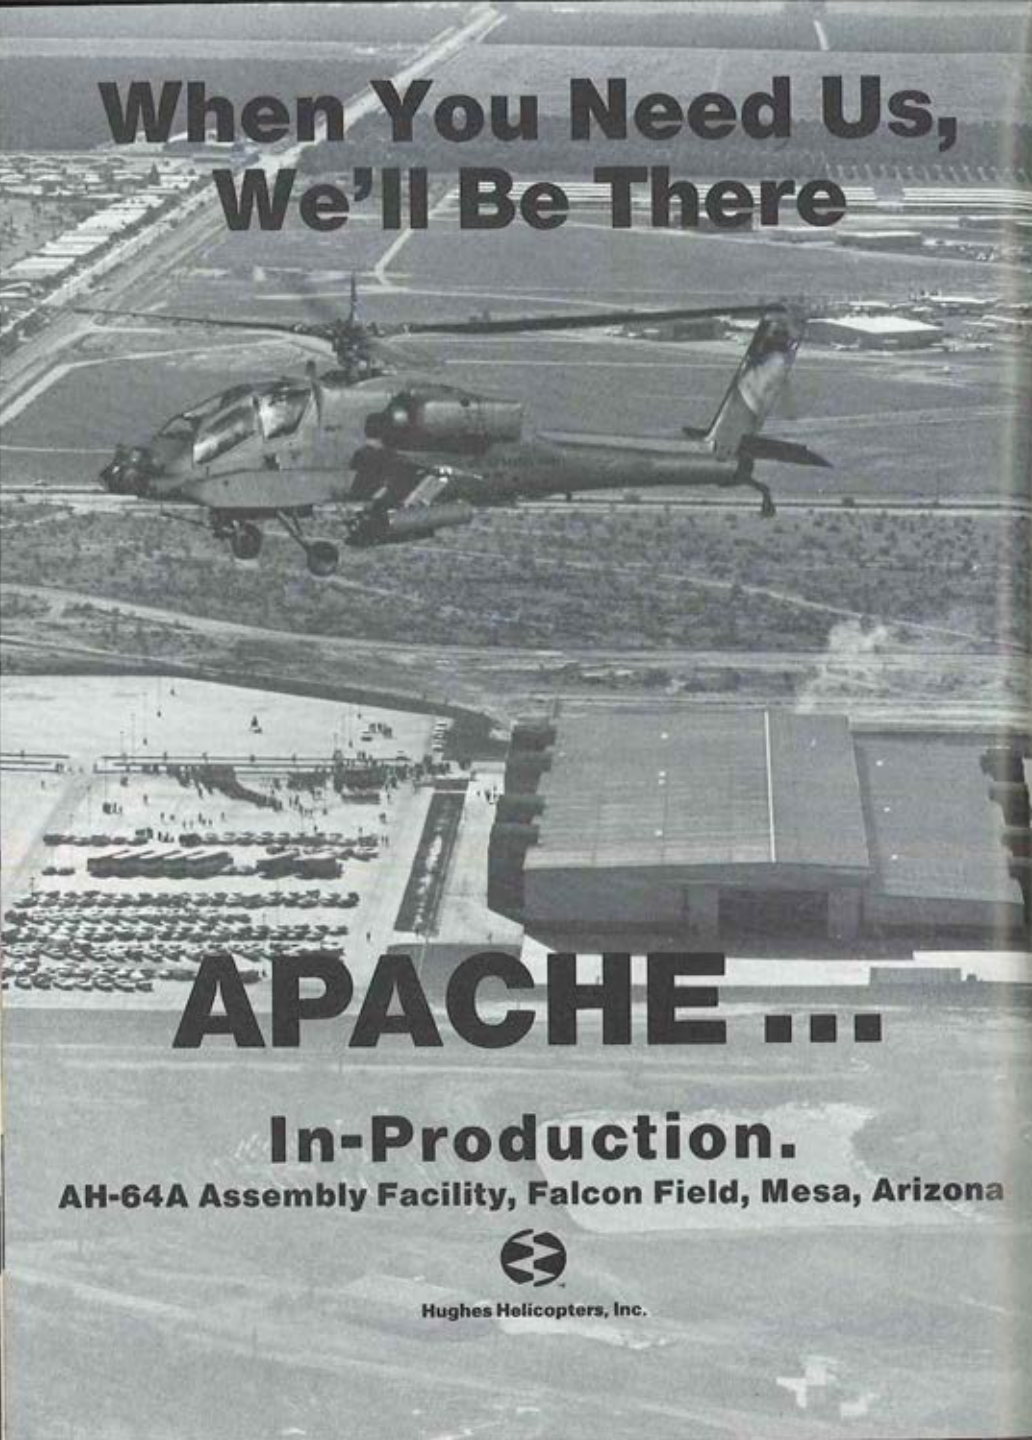

A successful development program could lead to modification of at least 578 helicopters to the Army Scout configuration through multi-year procurement by the Army.

Designated the OH-58D, the aircraft will provide the Army with a close combat aerial reconnaissance helicopter capable of intelligence gathering and surveillance as well as supporting attack helicopter missions and directing artillery fire.

McDonnell Douglas Astronautics, with the Northrop Corporation Electro Mechanical Division as a subcontractor, will provide the major sub-system, the helicopter mast mounted sighting system. Sperry Flight Systems will provide the helicopter visual controls, displays and multiplex systems.

OR: Never Eat at 'Mom's', and Other Rules of the Road

THE peak vacation season is upon us, as is apparent by the number of overloaded station wagons on the highway with children crammed in the back waving and mugging at other drivers. Anyone who has partaken in this annual ritual knows that it usually isn't long — 15 minutes to an hour, depending on the ages of the children — before the initial glee of escape dissolves into the grumbles of hunger, and the frightful question must be faced: Where do we eat?

We are never so vulnerable, gastronomically speaking, as when we are on the road during vacations. The highway is replete with culinary land mines disguised as quaint local restaurants that carry such reassuring names such as Millie's, Pop's, and Capt'n Dick's. Around every corner lurk greasy Fisherman's Platters that give children nightmares, Naugahyde minute steaks that put tofu-burgers in a favorable light and all those ubiquitous fast-food indigestion huts.

Smugness turns to horror

The smugness we feel upon seeing visitors to our own town wander into the most outrageously priced restaurant — the one that specializes in gray slabs of meat substance and changes owners every three months — turns to horror as we contemplate falling prey ourselves.

Guidebooks aren't much help. High-class publications usually list enchanting places 40 miles out of the way, while America's counterpart to Europe's Guides Michelin, the Mobil Travel Guides, are hardly a gastronome's bible. They have been accused of being more concerned with restroom sanitation than food. Calvin Trillin, the New Yorker magazine writer and author of several books, once postulated that Mobil's restaurant critic was promoted to that position "as a reward for initiative and efficiency he demonstrated as a service-station attendant."

This circumstance leaves one pretty much to fend for himself. Seasoned travelers usually compile over time their own rules for judging restaurants. The late Fernand Point, the reknowned chef of Pyramide in Vienne, France, used to go into a restaurant's kitchen before eating to shake the chef's hand. If the chef was thin, he had second thoughts about eating there; if the chef was thin and sad, he fled.

I have assembled my own specific if fallible rules of the road, which will soon be retested on the battlefield.

¶The Pepper-Mill Law: This disparity between a restaurant's price and food quality rises in direct proportion to the size of the pepper mill. Upon entering a restaurant, discreetly ask the manager or maitre d'hotel if you could take a look at the pepper mill (do so in a jocular, off-handed way to avoid suspicion, perhaps mentioning that you have a collection of unusual pepper mills from around the world and want to see what they've got). If it is a utilitarian instrument no larger than your fist, eat there. If, however, it resembles a deftly turned Louisville Slugger, tell the manager you think you left your car keys in the trunk and scurry out.

¶The Billboard Law: When a restaurant mounts an expensive and repetitive billboard campaign that reads "30 Miles to Injun Joe's...20 Miles to Injun Joe's...5 Miles to Injun Joe's..." accelerate upon reaching Injun Joe's.

¶The Barnyard Law: You will never go hungry in a restaurant that features a huge plastic barnyard animal out front on the roof. Waitresses are generally pleasant at these places and the milk has a frothy head.

¶The Altitude Law: The quality of food is in inverse proportion to a dining room's altitude, especially atop bank and hotel buildings (airplanes are an extreme example). There are some notable exceptions to this rule, of course, but I stand by it in general.

¶The Chinese Law: Never eat Chinese food in Oklahoma.

¶The Dishwasher Law: Contrary to popular notion, truck drivers know nothing about good restaurants. If you want a reliable tip, drive into a town, go to the nearest appliance store and seek out the dishwasher repair man. He spends a lot of time in restaurant kitchens and usually has strong opinions about them.

¶The Law of Velocity: Bad food that is eaten at 60 miles per hour tastes better than bad food eaten in the restaurant that prepared it. This is a twist on the "Hot dogs taste better at the ball park" law. If you fall prey to a bad restaurant, ask the waitress for doggie bags so you can eat in the car.

¶The Canine Law: Never eat in a restaurant that has a dog napping on or near the front stoop. It is probably this town's version of your gray meat steak-house.

¶The Law of Volubility: Your chances of getting an expensive platter consisting mainly of potato chips, pickle wedges, and shredded iceberg lettuce is greatest in restaurants with (A) a long, poignant story on the menu describing how the restaurant's name came about; (B) cute names for mundane dishes ("Davy Jones's Platter," example); (C) excessive macrame in the dining room.

¶The Local Color Law: If time permits, scan local weekly newspapers for church suppers, fund raisers, and such events as Daughters of the American Revolution picnics. The price will be right for a family meal, and while the food may not be three-star, it will be copious and you won't have to leave a tip.

¶The Survival Law: Never eat at a place called Mom's. Ever. IIIII

A SPECIAL RADIO FOR A SPECIAL MISSION.

THE KING AN/ARC-199

The Need: An HF radio that meets the rigorous communications requirements for the U.S. Army's nap of the earth (NOE) mission.

The Objective: Keep Army helicopters in touch with Army ground forces. Because these NOE helicopter missions are flown at and below treetop level, an HF radio (instead of line-of-sight UHF/VHF) is needed. And a special HF at that. One that can be operated with telephone like simplicity and reliability.

The Catch: Because the system must be operational as soon as possible, the Army specifies a "non-developmental" (virtually off-the-shelf) radio for both aircraft and ground vehicles. And the radio must have preset channels, selective squelch, variable power outputs, MilStd 1553 data bus, secure voice compatibility, multiple selective addressing and preset channel scanning. It must also have growth potential for frequency agility, frequency link analysis, automated communications electronic operating instructions and other features to make it a truly ADAPTIVE HF SYSTEM.

The Winner? King Radio Corporation. King wins over tough competition from Collins and Gould. But King entered the competition with a real advantage—the most advanced commercial HF radio in its class. The KHF 950 represents the leading edge of new HF technology. KHF 950s are already performing in over 800 aircraft even though the radio was only introduced in 1981. The two mil-spec Army radios to be derived from the KHF 950 (the airborne AN/ARC-199 and the ground based AN/VRC-86) will have such advanced features as CRT displays and keyboard tuning—all in a 30 pound airborne package. And these radios will be available in 1983—in record time.

For more information about how we can adapt our HF products to meet your military requirements contact: Dan Rodgers, Special Programs Department, King Radio Corporation, 400 North Rogers Road, Olathe, Kansas 66062. (800) 255-6243. Telex WUD (0) 4-2299 Cable: KINGRAD.

From the inception of the JVX Program to the awarding of that program's preliminary design, the Bell-Boeing TiltRotor Team applauds all those who have made the right decisions. Each step continues to advance America's TiltRotor technology. We've come a long way to be prepared for the JVX:

- Over 400 hours of TiltRotor flight experience
- 27 wind tunnel models
- 1,000+ hours of flight simulator experience
- 9,000+ hours of aerodynamics testing
- One-half million data points used to correlate analyses, wind tunnel and flight tests
- Better than two years of successful military trials and international demonstrations
- More than 65 top American pilots and aviation experts have flown the TiltRotor

In this, my first letter to you and to the general membership of the AAAA, I'd like to confirm my desire to serve your personal interests during my term of office and to assure that the Association's on-going programs continue to meet with your full participation.

In this regard I would like to call your attention to several national programs that are featured in this issue . . . The details of our "Life Membership Program" are published in each August issue and they may be found on page 63 together with a full list of AAAA's 330+ current Life Members.

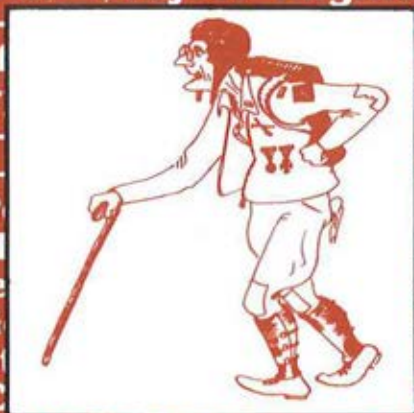

Over the past 25 years more than 12,000 Army Aviators and crew members have purchased AAAA-endorsed Flight Pay Insurance, and have received in excess of $1.2 million in indemnities through the program. This fact is stressed in the material appearing on page 66.

One well-received benefit are the alternate month rosters that provide the professional and personal backgrounds of major segments of our membership. This issue has a centerfold, pull-out section covering the "Society for the Preservation of Old Friends," the SPOOF Roster of retired members.

These are but a few of the sustaining programs of the Association. I'll cover many others in subsequent issues and will also bring you the details of our new programs as they develop.

Many of our retired military readers, in not moving about from place to place in a retirement status, cannot place their corresponding addresses in the magazine's "PCS" columns periodically which only report changes. Hence, they lose contact with many of their old friends with whom they still wish to communicate. The once-a-year listing through the SPOOF Roster is a way to help.

The Bendix/SFIM Direct View Optical Gyro-stabilized Sight is field proven and readily available.

With the APX M 344 sight you don't have to get up close to get a close-up look of the enemy. The sight is a periscopic optical unit with gyroscope stabilized mirror for ground observation from helicopters.

The roof-mounted sight, now flying on twelve different aircraft in twenty-six countries around the world, gives the airborne observer a capability for identifying targets at an extended range – up to 4 km – increasing mission success and improving survivability.

This easy-to-install, easy-to-maintain sight can be coupled to weapons systems for added effec-proven you fly with it.

tiveness and permits firing of a variety of armaments from moving carriers. Extraordinary image stability is the result of the combined action of the gyro-stabilized optical system and of an anti-vibration mounting adapted to each carrier.

Made by SFIM of France and made available in the U.S. by Bendix, this cost-effective sight is ready for immediate delivery and action. For literature or in-house demonstration of our optical sighting systems, call (201) 393-2142, or write: Bendix Corporation, Flight Systems Division, Teterboro, NJ 07608 U.S.A.

Many of our retired military readers, in not moving about from place to place in a retirement status, cannot place their corresponding addresses in the magazine's "PCS" columns periodically which only report changes. Hence, they lose contact with many of their old friends with whom they still wish to communicate. The once-a-year listing through the SPOOF Roster is a way to help.

1983 SPOOF ROSTER

The SPOOF Roster may be removed as a single unit and used as a reference tool by removing the top and bottom staples in the centerfold of the issue.

Looking ahead to 1984 through 1995. AAAA's Convention options & dates.

In order to assure that the AAAA has both meeting and exhibit space at future conventions, as well as sufficient sleeping rooms adjacent to an exhibit site, the Nat'l Office has signed informal "letters of intent" with Convention facilities in the "rotation cities" specified by the National Board.

These documents serve to hold both sleeping and public space at one or more Convention hotels as well as exhibit and meeting space at a nearby Convention Center.

These facilities are reserved for the AAAA on a "first option" basis with the formal contracts to be signed about 18 months prior to the actual Convention. Until the contracts are signed, however, the AAAA is free to change the "Convention city" in each year shown. In some instances, firm contracts have already been signed and these are denoted by an asterisk (*).

"Dragon Flight's" winter of 1952 was no hardship tour!

OR: MASH wasn't the only good assignment one could have in Eighth U.S. Army

I came across something the other day while I was rummaging about that I thought some of your readers might find of interest. It was an old group picture that was taken in Korea during the war there — the faces, the facts, and the furniture might change, but a photo like this is both timeless and universal. I'm certain there were many such group scenes throughout the Vietnam War.

At any rate, this story goes back over 30 years. To start, you should know that during the Korean War Army Aviators first served a so-called "front-line" six-month tour (flying artillery, infantry, or armor missions, usually at low levels, and often under rather intense anti-aircraft fire.)

Subsequently they rotated back to a Corps Headquarters or other rear-area flying assignment. One of the best of these rear area assignments was that of flying for the Eighth Army Flight Detachment, the "Dragon Flight," which, by the fall of 1951, was back at the "Race Track" at Seoul.

It truly was a racetrack; we landed on the back stretch, taxied out and in using the turns at the ends of the track, and parked on the home stretch.

This was considered to be a good job for several reasons, most important among which were that:

(1) We got to fly all different kinds of aircraft.

(2) We flew the most interesting people you could imagine—President-Elect Eisenhower, Billy Graham, Ed Murrow, Cardinal Spellman, the Premier of France, Walter Pidgeon, Debby Reynolds, etc.

(3) We got to sleep in a building, such as it was.

(4) Maybe most important of all, there was a real shower and indoor plumbing, but neither the shower nor the biffy were heated. Believe me, after six to nine months of sleeping in tents, and showering out of your steel pot, the Race Track looked like heaven, indeed!

The camaraderie, which began during the front-line tour, often continued with friends from the divisions visiting regularly. All the aviators slept in an open bay on the upper floor of the old racing steward's office building and the bar was at one end.

If an old buddy from "the front" stopped in to visit—and the war stories got loud—as they usually did—it got a bit difficult for the rest to sleep. You know the story. If you can't beat 'em, you join 'em, and that's what we usually did.

Anyway, sometime in the Fall of 1952, someone (it could have been Joe McDonald (the AAAA Past President), our commander; Scott Busby, the Operations Officer; or "Coon Dog" Miller, our resident party organizer and builder)—someone got the idea to build a really nice lounge (label it Bar), and we set out doing just that.

We came up with mahogany paneling, a foot rail, a stove that really heated up, and a large painting, copied from a postcard, that duplicated the panoramic view from the Top of the Mark, the Mark Hopkins Hotel in San Francisco.

The only thing missing was You-Know-What, and occasionally there was even some of that! The bar was near being world-renowned!

We opened it with full ceremonial honors on Christmas Eve, 1952, and there were very few dry eyes as Joe McDonald played the records his lovely wife, Madelyn, had sent for the occasion. Jo Stafford sang "I'll be home for Christmas" and "You Belong to Me" long into the night.

Somewhere in the evening (it must have been early by the still-clean-and-fresh appearance of everyone) a group picture was taken and I have enclosed that picture with this bit of nostalgia.

Sometimes it seems like only yesterday when all of us were there on that cold but somehow happy evening. Several of the group have checked their "mags" for the last time and have flown off to the "Land of Constant CAVU." But many are still around.

As I looked at the faces of those old friends in the picture I thought that you and they and other readers might enjoy reminiscing with me at this time about this particular gathering and by the countless other "It's a joy to be alive and behind the lines" gatherings of our aviators in this and other wars that this photo certainly must bring to mind. ■■■■

Q.

What similar purchase have more than 12,000 Army Aviators made in the past 15 years?

A.

They've purchased AAAA-endorsed flight pay insurance. As an active duty or or as a Reserve Component Army Aviator, don't you think you owe it to yourself to get the basic facts about this coverage which has returned more than $2 million in lost flight pay to claimants?

All it costs is a stamp.

The optoelectronic helicopter.

Boeing Vertol continues to press forward in the search for increased helicopter reliability and advanced performance. Now under development, helicopter control systems utilizing a marriage of fiber optics and digital electronics . . . optoelectronics . . . the next step beyond fly-by-wire.

The U.S. Army Applied Technology Laboratory is developing the advanced digital optical control system, or ADOCS, which further increases reliability by being impervious to electrical disturbances. Not only does ADOCS eliminate heavy mechanical linkages, its light weight and low cost permit multiple redundancy for extra protection against crippling enemy fire.

Prior to actual flight, ADOCS will be pre-tested on our moving-base flight simulator with its multi-window, nap-of-the-earth display . . . the only one of its kind in the industry. It's another example of Boeing's leading edge, the restless search that has brought about fiberglass blades, composite structures, high-speed rotors, and electronic vibration suppression . . . a search that continues to develop bearingless main rotors, advanced cockpits, tilt rotor design and more. It's the search for the better helicopter, the Boeing priority.
